Creating Lead

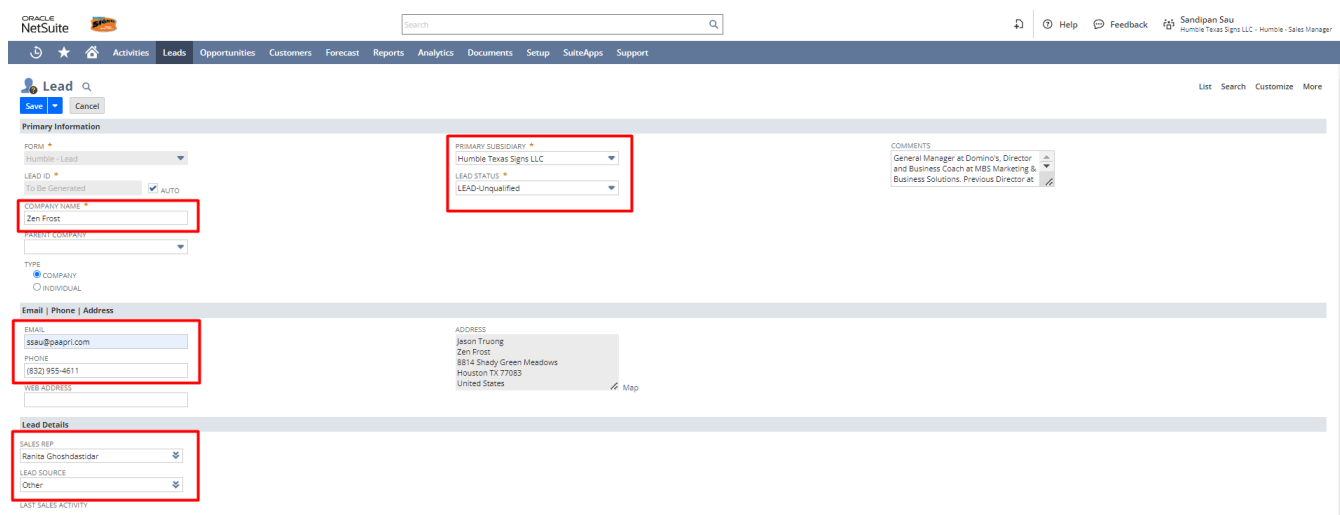

Leads are companies or individuals who represent potential customers. In NetSuite, leads are the first step in the sales cycle that progresses to prospect and then to customer.

Sales organization evaluate leads through a qualification process that measures their ability and willingness to purchase. When a lead is viable, it is ready for assignment to a sales representative

Navigation: Leads -> Relationships -> Leads -> New

In the Lead form select Type, enter the Company/Individual Name, Primary Subsidiary (If multiple subsidiaries are present), Lead Status, Email, Sales Rep (If a sales rep is associated), and Lead Source

Under the Qualification subtab, enter the following:

- Estimated Budget: Enter the estimated budget the prospect or customer has for this opportunity.
- Buying Reason: Choose the prospect or customer's reason for buying from your company.
- Budget Approved: Check this box if the customer's budget has been approved.
- Sales Readiness: Choose how close the prospect or customer is to purchasing.
- Buying Time Frame: Select the time frame for the prospect or customer to purchase.

Creating Opportunities

Opportunities represent negotiations with prospects. In NetSuite, you create opportunity records that give sales managers and executives visibility into the pipeline and sales forecast. These records provide reps with a central record for tracking and organizing sales activity.

Sales reps can use opportunities to record the build-up to a deal. For example, reps can attach related tasks, events, files, notes, and messages from the customer. These attachments provide a complete view of the deal as it evolves. Reps can also track competing companies as well as provide reasons why they won or lost the deal.

Navigation: Opportunities -> Transactions -> Opportunities -> New

In the Opportunity form select Company, enter the Date, Expected Close, Status, Probability, and Projected Total. If required enter the Location and Win/Loss Reason, and the Weighted Total will be the Probability % of the Projected Total.

Although the item subtab is not a mandatory section, users can enter the Item from the dropdown, enter a quantity, and provide the rate if required.

Note: Opportunity transaction is the only record which you can save without putting the item information

In the Accounting subtab if there is some profit associated with it, all those information will be coming over here.

In the Sales subtab, you can put the Estimated Budget, Buying Time Frame, Buying Reason and all others details like you had put at the Lead level.
